

Select light curves for all potentially variable objects which are currently not classified as variable objects

It is possible scientists will want to find variable objects which were not classified as variable objects in production because they fall just under the threshold used during classification process.